Editorial Quality

Judge Number One

This is an impressive newsletter – especially considering its humble beginnings as a simple meeting announcement. The editing is well done, and the content is relevant, interesting and easy-to-read (a difficult combination to achieve!). Many Kudos on the Alamo Tech Lines!

Judge Number Two

Over all, I think you do a great job. I enjoyed the amount of information regarding the chapter and activities included in each issue. I enjoyed how you promoted STC and your chapter. I wish I lived there and could belong to such an involved chapter.

Judge Number Three

I like the Membership Manager's article on networking in September, and it is nice to see consistency of having an editor's corner, program review, and D-S column every month.

I also really liked the Message from the President in November, with lots of good practical tips for implementing change in a less-than-perfect job situation.

Design and Delivery

Judge Number One

I can tell that you have some copyediting experience – the pages in the Alamo Tech Lines are neat and very easy to look at. Use of clip art was tasteful and plenty of white space was used to separate elements on the page. Very, very nicely done!

Judge Number Two

Great job, especially since a single person manages so much of the production and distribution.

Judge Number Three

I like the size and format, it is a good solution to limited resources. I also like the page design, and use of graphics.
